

Endorsements

Jim Burns, Ph.D. Review:

Jennifer Strickland's story is absolutely compelling. It reads like a novel but it is real life. There isn't a young girl or woman in the universe who would not be enthralled with this message. As a beautiful young model, Jennifer found emptiness and deep sorrowful pain. Yet today she is a wonderful wife and mother who has found true beauty, hope and restoration. It's a message for this generation.

--Jim Burns, Ph.D., President of HomeWord, Author of Confident Parenting and Teenology: The Art of Raising Great Teens

Kim Alexis Review:

This is not another "how to" book. This is a personal journey shared by Jennifer. She opens her heart and exposes the pain she experienced while being a successful model. Jennifer puts her modeling experiences on paper in a beautiful, descriptive way. I, too, went through these same feelings of rejection and being treated like an object and not a person. Sometimes we have to go on an emotional roller coaster to find true love. Come share Jennifer's journey as she discovers what beauty really is. This book will help you to identify the lies and deceptions of the world and help you find the true meaning of beauty, acceptance and love.

--Kim Alexis, Spokesperson, Author, Encourager

Debbie Stuart Review:

There is a spiritual battle for the minds and hearts of women. It's real and its raw and it is destroying the lives of women. With transparency and authenticity Jennifer uncover lies, deception and distractions that keep women searching for something that will never satisfy. This book is a message of healing truth, spiritual realities, love and freedom that every woman longs for. She tackles the tough struggles and issues that women have learned to hide and helps us find hope in our true identity and purpose. Her words are like those of Deborah in the Bible, "March On, O my soul in courage!" (Judges 5:21)

--Debbie Stuart, Church and Leadership Development Director, Women of Faith

Margot Starbuck Review:

"I am a big believer that destructive lies are rooted out only by truth. As an eyewitness to the sinister power of lies in the lives of those God loves, Jennifer Strickland offers good news to girls and women who have believed the lie that they're not worth much. Beautiful Lies is food for those who hunger for that which really satisfies."

--Margot Starbuck, Author of Unsqueezed: Springing Free From Skinny Jeans, Nose Jobs, Highlights and Stilettos, www.MargotStarbuck.com

Holly Wagner Review:

Every woman should know that she is loved and valued simply for being who she is. In Beautiful Lies Jennifer reveals the lies that so many women believe. She tells her own story honestly and compellingly and then offers practical hope for all of us as we seek to live a life of meaning. I am so glad she is my friend, and I am so glad she wrote this book. I know that it will help everyone who reads it!

--Holly Wagner, Author and Founder of GodChicks, Daily Steps for GodChicks, Warrior Chicks and Survival Guide for Young Women

Carol Kent Review:

"Beautiful Lies is a book every woman should read. Jennifer Strickland weaves the powerful story of her life throughout each chapter, while emphasizing transformational truths from God's Word. Her vulnerability, exquisite writing style, and practical take-home applications make this book the ideal choice for personal or for small group use."

--Carol Kent, Speaker and Author, Becoming a Woman of Influence (NavPress)

Steve Arterburn Review:

I believe in Jennifer and her transformational and healing message. This book will make a huge difference in the lives of many young women who need it.

--Steve Arterburn

Pat Cimo Review:

Reading Beautiful Lies captivated my heart in so many ways! The stories of Jennifer's life brought me from a place of clinging to a place of surrendering. Instead of clinging to my past, Jennifer reminded me of a better way to live- to move from being a victim who lives in fear to loving myself through God's eyes and living in freedom! If every parent read this book, they would know how to bless their daughters. If every woman read this book, we could move from living in isolation to living in true community.

--Pat Cimo, Family Life Director, Willow Creek Community Church